the U.S. desire to enter into arms negotiations with the Soviet Union:

Value of Limited BMD in Arms Control: The value of a limited BMD of the Safeguard type in our negotiations with the Soviet Union to limit the size of the thermonuclear forces in both countries, in my opinion, can be stated simply:

The portion of the system devoted to the protection of Minuteman has the obvious advantage of not requiring expansion of the Minuteman system or introduction of a new ground-based offensive-missile system should the U.S. become concerned about the development of a significant counter-force or first-strike capability by the Soviets. Therefore, we could still maintain a high-confidence assured-destruction policy with respect to the Soviet Union, while maintaining the same number of ground-based offensive missiles.

As I mentioned previously, the area-defense portion of the system, aimed at providing some protection for the population, has the distinct advantage of not forcing the President to implement formally an assured-destruction policy with respect to any limited-resource nation, such as the Chinese People's Republic, that might develop thermonuclear weapons and intercontinental delivery systems.

Concluding Remarks: In closing, I would like to make some further suggestions on arms control—four specific suggestions:

- 1. Introduction into the United Nations of a photographic-reconnaissance capability enabling it to publish, on a regular basis, photographs of the strategic forces and even the conventional forces deployed around the world.
- 2. Introduction into the United Nations of an early-warning satellite system for monitoring all launches and permitting the world body to publish their trajectories. This would make public all missile testing on a regular basis.
- 3. Declassification as rapidly as possible of all intelligence data pertinent to the size and technical complexity of the strategic forces throughout the world. The size and sophistication of the strategic forces in the U.S. and the Soviet Union are of such a magnitude that the disclosure of any information by the U.S. does not in any way compromise the security of either nation. The destructive power of these forces is so great that any disclosure of their technical performance characteristics is academic.
- 4. Restriction on the development of the technical capability by the Soviet Union or the U.S. of initiating a successful first strike against the ground-base forces. This basically would mean a restriction on the size and particularly the accuracy of any future missile systems. The USSR and the U.S. are mutually deterred, since a major portion of both populations are essentially hostages. But the feels required to accomplish that obtaining the control of the destruction of a major portion.

ie., the destruction of a major por-the U.S. or Soviet population, are laller than the present U.S. and Soviet forces-by a factor of 70% to 80%. In fact, the size of the forces on either side is primarily determined by its ability to absorb a first strike. Therefore, a treaty to restrict the development of a first-strike capability could, if successfully implemented, mean that both the Soviets and ourselves could reduce the strategic offensive forces by about 75%. Of course, the major problem in implementing such an agreement is verification. The two technical problems would be to verify the number of warheads in each missile and, particularly, their accuracy. If such an agreement could be reached, however, a joint technical program between the Soviets and ourselves with the participation of the United Nations could be undertaken to develop verification techniques.

QUESTIONNAIRE RESULTS—ARIZONA'S SECOND DISTRICT

HON. MORRIS K. UDALL

OF ARIZONA

- IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, September 21, 1976

Mr. UDALL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to place in the RECORD the results of my 1976 legislative questionnaire.

Nearly 15,000 constituents of the Second Congressional District of Arizona took the time and effort to respond to what was probably the most extensive questionnaire I have ever sent.

Mr. Speaker, I am gratified by the response to this questionnaire and by the many people who added their own personal remarks.

There are those who voice concern these days about voter apathy and distrust of government. I am proud of my constituents who have indicated by this response that they are aware of the issues of the day and they care enough to inform their Congressman of their views

The questionnaire results follow:
1976 LEGISLATIVE QUESTIONNAIRE
SECTION 1

(In this section respondents were asked to state whether they agreed strongly, tended to agree, had no opinion, tended to disagree or disagreed strongly. For purposes of tabulation we have combined "agree strongly" and "tend to agree", and have combined "disagree strongly" and "tend to disagree". The percentage difference between the totals of these two categories and 100% is those voters who registered "no opinion").

PASSENGER AID VOLUNTEER CONCEPT

HON. SHIRLEY N. PETTIS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, September 21, 1976

Mrs. PETTIS. Mr. Speaker, as a sponsor of similar legislation to grant reduced air fares to the elderly and the handicapped, as well as their attendants, I would like to call to my colleagues' attention an innovative proposal developed by the Association of Flight Attendants—the union representing 18,000 flight attendants who are responsible for the safety of occupants aboard commercial aircraft.

This proposal, which is entitled the "Passenger Aid Volunteer Concept" was developed and submitted by AFA to both the Federal Aviation Administration and the Civil Aeronautics Board in order to help insure the safe evacuation of a handicapped passenger in a potential emergency.

Mr. Speaker, this concept would provide for rapid egress of the physically disabled and at the same time allow the other passengers the capability of evacuating without undue congestion, should the occasion arise.

Briefly, this concept works as follows:

1. Upon making reservations for a flight, the physically or mentally disabled individual (or their guardian, relative, friend, or whomever) would notify the airline concerning their specific limitations in caring for themselves (or the physically disabled). The disabled passenger would notify the airline whether he/she would be traveling with a companion of their choice or whether the airline needed to secure a Passenger Aid Volunteer for them.

2. The physically or mentally disabled individual could have a traveling companion of their own choice and the traveling companion would be required to pay only half of the published fare for that portion of the flight in which he served to provide assistance to the disabled person.

3. Should the disabled passenger have no companion who is physically capable of assisting him, he/she would ask for a Passenger Aid Volunteer. In doing so, the disabled passenger would provide his name, age, physical disability, height, weight, and destination.

4. Physically able passengers (after this service has been advertised and recognized) who specifically planned their trips in advance could place their names (with the specific airline) on a Passenger Aid Volunteer list and would either be assigned to a specific disabled passenger at that time or would be assigned to a disabled passenger shortly before flight. The Passenger Aid Volunteer would be required to provide the airline with his weight, height, age and so on which would assist in pairing the Passenger Aid Volunteer with the Passenger requiring assistance. The Passenger Aid Volunteer would be required to pay only half of the published fare for that portion of the flight in which he served on behalf of the passenger who required his assistance.

5. Should a physically able passenger assist a passenger requiring assistance during a given flight, the Passenger Aid Volunteer shall be refunded one half of the published fare for that portion of the flight in which he served on behalf of the passenger requiring assistance, providing authority at the boarding station had been issued.

6. Should there be no Passenger Aid Volunteer listed (with the airline) for the disabled passenger (for a particular flight), the flight attendant or agent could select an able bodied passenger to serve as a Passenger Aid Volunteer aboard the flight. The, flight attendant or agent in their selecting of an abled bodied passenger, would inquire as to his willingness to sit with and assist the disabled individual, and properly inform the passenger (PAV) that he would receive one half of his fare upon reaching his destination by presenting the proper form to the ticket counter upon arrival. The Passenger Aid Volunteer would then be presented with the authorization for refund of one half of the published fare for the duration of the flight that he is to assist the disabled passenger.

7. If (a) no "Passenger Aid Volunteers" were available prior to flight time, (b) the disabled passenger did not have his own traveling companion and (c) no one abroad the aircraft volunteered to be a "Passenger Aid Volunteer", then the airline would have to provide an employee who is physically capable of assisting the disabled passenger.

8. In order to implement this program and to prevent infractions, the airline might want a standard certificate for proof of incapacitation requiring assistance.

Mr. Speaker, in addition to urging my colleagues to support this legislation to provide reduced air fares for the elderly, the handicapped and their attendants, I do hope that the Civil Areonautics Board will carefully take into consideration the passenger aid volunteer concept.

RESOLUTION ON MONITORING ROMANIA: THE STATUS OF EMI-GRATION AND HUMAN RIGHTS

HON. EDWARD I. KOCH

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, September 21, 1976

Mr. KOCH. Mr. Speaker, yesterday I introduced House Resolution 1556 on behalf of Congressmen Robert F. Drinan, Christopher J. Dodd, and myself. Because we will be asking our coleagues to join us in cosponsoring this resolution later this week, I am appending a copy so that Members may take this early opportunity to consider the resolution:

H. RES. 1556

Whereas section 402 of the Trade Act of 1974 establishes the dedication of the United States to the protection of fundamental human rights and cultural freedom, especially the right to emigrate;

Whereas such dedication has been reconfirmed by the signing by the United States of the Helsinki Agreement (The Final Act of the Conference on Cooperation and Security in Europe) which agreement was also signed by Canada and thirty-three European nations, including the Socialist Republic of Romania:

Whereas the Socialist Republic of Romania has restricted the freedom of its citizens in the exercise of their fundamental human rights and cultural freedom, including the exercise of such rights and freedom with respect to education, religion, emigration, and language; and

Whereas such restriction by the Socialist Republic of Romania is inconsistent with the goals of the Trade Act of 1974 and the Helsinki Agreement: Now, therefore, be it Resolved, by the House of Representatives—

That the President is requested to transmit to each House of Congress and to the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe a report with respect to the freedom of the citizens of the Socialist Republic of Romania to exercise their fundamental human rights and cultural freedom, especially the right to emigrate;

That the President is requested to transmit to the Congress a report with respect to the freedom of the citizens of the Socialist Republic of Romania to exercise their fundamental human rights and cultural freedoms, especially the right to emigrate, each time the President makes a request for authority to waive the application of section 402 (a) and (b) of the Trade Act of 1974 or for authority to extend the United States-Romanian Trade agreement itself;

That the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe is requested to transmit to each House of Congress a report with respect to the freedom of the citizens of the Socialist Republic of Romania to emigrate and the status of minorities in the Social Republic of Romania;

That it is the sense of the House of Representatives that if the Socialist Republic of Romania continues to restrict the freedom of its citizens in the exercise of their fundamental human rights and cultural freedom, especially the right to emigrate, then the 1975 United States-Romanian Trade Agreement and the most-favored nation treatment of the Socialist Republic of Romania by the United States should be terminated; and

That there shall be made available from the contingent fund of the House, $50,000 for the Trade Subcommittee of the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives for the expenses of acquiring additional staff to assist such subcommittee in carrying out its duties under the Trade Act of 1974. Payment of such amount shall be made upon vouchers signed by the chairman of such subcommittee.

- BICENTENNIAL PROJECTS: REGISTER AND VOTE, SIGN A FACSIMILE OF THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

HON. CHARLES J. CARNEY

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, September 21, 1976

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, I have recently been advised that the Printing Industries of America, Inc., in cooperation with the Salem, Ohio Historical Society and the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, is sponsoring a "Bicentennial Signerfest" as the grand finale of our country's Bicentennial celebration.

According to the "Bicentennial Signer-fest," Americans everywhere are being asked to sign facsimiles of the Declaration of Independence as a way of reaffirming our commitment to the principles espoused by the Founding Fathers 200 years ago, and as a way of encouraging Americans to vote in this important election year.

Mr. Speaker, I commend the Printing Industries of America for their patriotism and public-spiritedness in undertaking this Bleentenial project. I would like to insert information concerning the "Signerfest" in the Record at this time for the consideration of my colleagues in the U.S. Congress and the American people:

PRESS RELEASE OF PRINTING INDUSTRIES OF AMERICA

In cooperation with the Salem Ohio Historical Society and the American Bicentennial Administration, regarding the current project of urging Americans to vote in this great Historic Bicentennial year and in the spirit of the Bicentennial.

Mr. Rodney L. Borum, President of the Printing Industry of America, has released the following letter to Mr. John Warner, Director of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration.

PRINTING INDUSTRIES OF AMERICA, INC., Arlington, Va., September 8, 1976.
Hon. John Warner,

Administrator, American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. WARNER: As you know, the Printing Industries of America adopted the Signerfest idea as its Bicentennial project, in cooperation with the Salem Ohio Historical Society which originated the idea four years ago. The project has been widely accepted.

PIA is currently urging its regional and local affiliates to offer Signerfest facsimiles of the Declaration of Independence as an "aid" to local efforts to encourage voting in 1976.

I understand you also are urging the various efforts to gear their voting projects to the "spirit of the Bicentennial." As President of the Printing Industries of America, I want you to know that PIA will do all we can to aid your efforts to get out the largest vote in America's history in this Bicentennial year.

Like our forefather-printers who printed and "preserved" the content of the Declaration, we of 1976 consider it a privilege for "The Art Preservative of All Arts" to preserve our "reaffirmation" for the Third Century.

We have found that the Signerfest idea is particularly useful for aiding voting projects not only because it points out the "source" of our individual rights but urges individuals to show their appreciation to our forefathers by voting in this historic Bicentennial year. Sincerely,

RODNEY L. BORUM,

President, Printing Industries of America.

The Signerfest idea basically encourages Americans everywhere to reaffirm the principles of the Supremacy of the Individual for America's third century Grandchildren, by signing facsimiles of the Declaration of Independence with a pledge addendum printed below the signatures of the original signers and with space for the members of a Family to add their signatures. Sample below:

[Due to mechanical limitations, the facsimile is not reproduced in the RECORD.] WE THE PEOPLE OF 1976

On the occasion of the Bicentennial "We the People of 1976" likewise sign our names to this facsimile in the spirit of our fore-fathers who signed the original, and pledge OUR lives, OUR fortunes and OUR sacred honor for the preservation of the political principles that all human rights are an endowment of the Creator and that government derives its power from the consent of the governed. We will pass this copy on to our grandchildren with the faith that history will encourage them to be Eternally Vigilant—lest they lose their Individual Supremacy by allowing the adoption of political policies of error.

The Family of (spaces for signatures). Below is a reproduction of the reverse side of the Signerfest facsimile [not reproduced due to mechanical limitations]. Facsimiles are printed on appropriate paper for "keepsakes".

WE THE PEOPLE OF 1976'

On the Great occasion of the Bicentennial celebration, what better way could "We the People of 1976" find to celebrate than to individually emulate our Forefathers by joining the 1976 "Bicentennial Signerfest" and sign our names to this Keepsake facsimile of the Declaration of Independence and pass it on to our Grandchildren.

Also what better way could we demonstrate our appreciation to our Forefathers, for their personal sacrifices to establish the political principle of the Supremacy of the Individual and upon which hang all the laws of the United States, than by exercising our political supremacy at this historic Bicentennial elections on Nov. 2nd, 1976, and vote.

The above Liberty Bell is a reproduction of the Declaration of Independence set in type and reproduced so small it is difficult to read with the naked eye. It can be read however, with the aid of a strong magnifying glass. The early Craftsman who set this typographical achievement is now unknown. So we take this opportunity to salute him along with modern lithographic Craftsmen who printed this reduced size.

This Bicentennial exercise in patriotism was first originated by the Salem Ohio Historical Society for its local celebration. Because of the national interest that has developed it is now being shared with other communities. The project was approved by the Ohio House of Representatives and the Ohio Senate by joint resolution on July 25, 1975 and reprinted with complimentary remarks in the Congressional Record of the 94th Congress on September 8th, 1975.

To America's Grandchildren of the Third Century—

In this Bicentennial year, the Democratic Party nominated Jimmy Carter; the Republican Party nominated Jerry Ford; the American Party nominated Lester Maddox and the Independent was Eugene McCarthy, for President.

In 1975 the Ohio House of Representatives and the Ohio Senate passed a joint resolution approving the Signerfest idea and urged communities everywhere and their sister, states to emulate by making the idea available as a Bicentennial "exercise in partriotism". The resolution on Sept. 8, 1975 was reprinted in the Congressional Record and is re-printed below:

[From the Congressional Record, Sept. 8, 1975]

Mr. CARNEY. Mr. Speaker, recently I received a letter from a friend and former Ohio Senate colleague of mine, the Honorable John Taylor, who is now retired and living in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Senator Taylor advises me that he has been promoting an idea for the Bicentennial celebration in conjunction with the Salem, Ohio Historical Society. His idea is an exceptional exercise in patriotism whereby Americans are encouraged to "sign their names."
